Pardo appointed to Advisory Group for National Center for Security and Preparedness at the University at Albany

Theresa Pardo was recently appointed to the Advisory Group for the National Center for Security and Preparedness at the University at Albany. This Center is part of UAlbany's Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy. The advisory group will meet two to three times a year and be responsible for reviewing the Center's projects and work to make recommendations with respect to the Center's mission, vision, and future areas of effort.

Through collaboration, creativity, and a commitment to excellence, the National Center for Security and Preparedness supports the nation's efforts to be secure from acts of terrorism and to be prepared to respond to incidents of high consequence and disasters through research, education, training, and technical assistance. As a global leader and innovator in security and preparedness, the Center integrates research, education, training, and technical assistance.
