

The Government of Israel's Merkava Project (Case Study)

Tue, 12 Sep 2006

Anthony M. Cresswell, G. Brian Burke

The Government of Israel's Merkava Project is an effort to restructure the financial, logistics, and human resource components of government-wide administration into an integrated Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system. Merkava is also part of a comprehensive eGovernment initiative that includes five layers of new technologies and operational systems for enhanced internal operations and improved benefits and services to citizens.